Ex-Producer of Online Porn Devotes Her Life to Protecting Children and Saving Families

Orlando, FL: September 15, 2007—A former producer of Internet pornography has used her bad past for good in a new book, Protecting Those You Love in an X-Rated World: Blocking Harmful Media and Online Influences (Bridge-Logos, July 2007). The book arms parents with proven ways to block pornography from their homes and families, and gives hope and help to those who've been wounded by or addicted to the devastating material. More than 420 million pornographic pages are accessible to kids online today.

"I used to make a lot of dirty money designing websites that peddled pornography," author Michele Washam says. "Then God opened my eyes to see how this material destroys families. He had a great plan for me, to use my past experiences for good. For the past six years, I have made it my life's mission to protect children and to help people pick up the pieces of their broken lives and marriages. My book equips parents and gives people hope in a dark world. It is a weapon in the war to save families."

Washam's desire to help parents stemmed from her own current success at keeping a porn-free home. "The book is based upon hands-on experience. I have three kids who all fall into the age considered to be pornography's 'largest group of viewers.' I knew I had to do something for my own kids as well as for other kids! There is too little knowledge in families today about what our kids are exposed to on a daily basis."

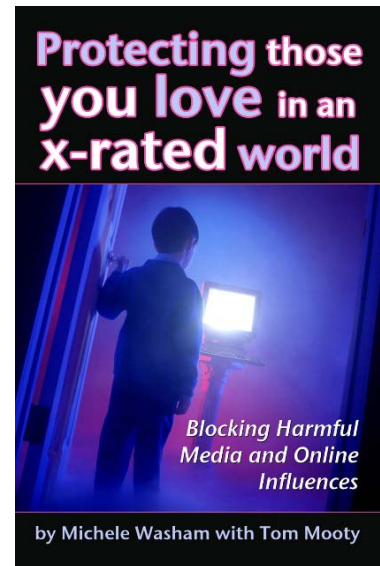

Washam's book, written with her pastor's assistance, offers, among other helps:

- 10 proven ways to arm yourself with the proper equipment to block out pornography from your home and computer
- Guaranteed ice breakers to talk to your kids about sex-related things
- Where spouses and families can find help and support for pornography addictions
- A step-by-step, free booklet: Quick Guide to Home PORNtection.
